What he’s made of gredeson grew up in Eskilstuna, Sweden’s City of Steel, where the tools come from. His parents are Finnish. He came out soft.

He is an engineer, a designer and a DJ, and he loves building rooms. He designs them, builds them and fills them with people. His flat is one of them: klub117, possibly the smallest club in Berlin. EDGE is another, a queer music collective he helps build. His own tools are tattooed on him. He calls them tattools.

A set is a room too. He hears sound as shape and colour, so he measures, cuts and joins. Then he adds the piece that shouldn’t fit.

Steel town. Total softie.
